Overview

NexBot Robotics 731-004 Joint Grease Cartridge (NXB-GEN-731-004) is a joint grease used in industrial robotics equipment where category-specific fit, electrical or mechanical compatibility, and predictable serviceability are important to buyers. The product should be understood as the exact component named by its category path, not as a complete robot or a generic service item. It supports installation, replacement, and maintenance workflows in robotic production cells by giving procurement and maintenance teams a clearly defined part class, relevant engineering specifications, and application context that matches the actual hardware being purchased.
